

LITERARY TRANSLATIONS – JUST FOR FUN

Here are 10 well known literary works, that's literary in the very loosest sense of the word. You have to identify the original text.

1. Whether you can retain your noddle when nobody else can
 And they say it's your fault,
Whether you are able to have self-confidence when others have no faith in you.

2. If one attempts to instruct an elderly member of the canine family to increase the range of its performance, the effort is almost certainly doomed to abject failure.

3. It is impossible to determine the quality of a collection of folios bound together by examining only its exterior.

4. An overabundance of individuals engaged in culinary activities related to the preparation of liquid nourishment may produce a totally unsatisfactory result.

5. Avian creatures embellished with identical or similar plumage have a strong tendency to associate with others of like plumage.

6. This rotund individual perched himself on a structure of bricks and mortar, but suffered an accident so severe that an army battalion was unable to repair the consequences.

7. Don't try to determine the number of these animals you'll have until they have emerged from their calcified coverings.

8. An avian creature that begins the day at a time when most others are not active has a far better opportunity to seize what it eats.

9. If an object or individual is no longer in one's field of vision, it is highly probable that the intellectual faculties involved in processing that information will disappear from the cognitive perception.

10. A young lady seated on a small ottoman was consuming some by-products of cheese making when an arachnid arrived, startling the young lady who sped from the scene.
